What programs/services would you like to see offered for your child during school breaks?

At this point, I have a wonderful daycare (KIDS, Inc in Milford, DE) that my son goes to. But after he turns 13 years old, he will not be able to go there, so I would love to see something for him after he turns 13 years old.

swimming lessons for handicapped children

activities that parents can participate in WITH the children

Qualified in-home care with caregivers who are familiar with my child at this age the only things my son is able to do would be weeks of camps that cost way more then I make in a week... so I guess programs that don't cost an arm and leg being offered would be great playdates. outings to a zoo pr park.

After care

Something AFFORDABLE for kids who don't seem to fit in the normal places. By that I mean a child who isn't interested in sports or physical activities, theater, or arts. Surely some high-tech gadget could be used to draw-out an introverted child with a great intellect & curiosity.

When my child was in school, I dreamed of an affordable day camp type program

Fortunately the daycare center that my son attends is always available

camp programs so she can feel like a "typical" kid

most of what our son takes is holistic. it would be nice if some how we could use this as a deduction or have some type of ins coverage for the large out of pocket expence

Too frequent pre-auth's required by DE Phys Care Inc. for DME supplies.

I appreciate your interest in families of children with differences. For me, the kinds of things that would be helpful to have include 1) info on the types of financial aid available and how to access them, and 2) how to connect with other families in similar situations to brainstorm together and offer emotional support. Currently, families with disabilities are lumped into one big group, and we are very diverse. (In this particular case, I'm referring to the Special Needs PTA. I would like to find another group with sub-specialties.)

My son is recovering from Autism via biomedical intervention.

depends on reason for denial and amount it would cost us with the ever changing pay my husband and I make it is always up and down due to the need to have one of us available for our son and dealing with the process becomes a hassle

I would need help in knowing how to change the claim denial, but it's probably pretty pointless. Our insurance covers very little. We pay out of pocket for our insurance, and it is a crummy plan.

depends on what it is
